TIPS ON STORING AND USING RAW AND ROASTED PEANUTS

Refrigerate peanuts and never keep them at room temperature; peanuts will become rancid in warm places.

Peanuts can be kept about one year at 30 degrees F.

Peanuts will keep fresh almost indefinitely when frozen at 0 degrees F.

Peanuts can be used immediately upon removal from frozen storage.

Peanuts may be refrozen without loss of quality.

In-shell peanuts keep better than shelled peanuts.

The taste test is the best test for freshness.

FRESHENING PEANUTS

The flavor of almost all nuts is improved by heating them for a few minutes in a moderate oven until they become crisp.

For some recipes, the nuts should be left in the oven until they are delicately browned. This browning brings out the flavor and is desirable whenever it is not necessary to keep the light color.

If the nuts are slightly rancid, they should be covered with boiling water, allowed to stand for about three minutes, drained and dried on a clean towel before being put into the oven to become crisp.

SALTED PEANUTS

Place raw, shelled peanuts in a bowl and blanch by pouring boiling water over them. Remove skins with fingers and dry on a towel.

Place peanuts in a small saucepan containing enough melted butter or peanut oil to partially cover, place in an oven or on top of the stove and fry until peanuts begin to turn cream colored. Stir while frying.

Remove with a small skimmer, taking up as little oil as possible. Drain on brown paper, sprinkle lightly with salt and serve.

ROASTED PEANUTS

Spread raw, shelled peanuts in one layer in a shallow baking pan. Heat in a slow oven at 300 degrees F. for 30-45 minutes, depending on how brown you want them. Stir peanuts often as they heat. Check on browning from time to time by removing the skins from a few of the peanuts. Serve them warm.

DEEP-FRIED PEANUTS

Put peanuts into a colander or frying basket. Submerge in peanut oil preheated to 350 degrees F. and fry for 2 minutes. Drain on paper towels, sprinkle with salt and serve warm.

BOILED GREEN PEANUTS

Wash the freshly harvested peanuts in a mild solution of kitchen detergent and rinse in clear water. Place the peanuts in a suitable saucepan and cover with a medium brine (10 oz. salt to one gallon of water). Boil covered for 45 minutes or until the kernels are tender. Let peanuts set in brine for 10-15 minutes. Taste test for preferred saltiness. Pour off the water and allow the peanuts to drain before serving. The peanuts are ready for shelling and eating immediately or they may be held in refrigerator for as long as five days.

Only freshly harvested green peanuts should be used. They are best if obtained straight from the farm. An alternate choice is purchasing those from the grocery store marked "peanuts for boiling."
